RICHARD BRENN

Faithful Old C. and O. Commerce
Street Gate Keeper Passes
Away

The faithful guardian of the Commerce street C. and O. gates, Uncle Dick Brenn, is no more, having passed over the "great divide" yesterday morning at St. Elizabeth Hospital, Covington, after a protracted illness with chronic intestinal catarrh, aged 66.

The deceased has been in charge of the gate crossing at Commerce street for the past twelve years and was a great favorite with residents in the neighborhood owing to the careful and watchful attention paid to the "folks" in keeping them out of harm's way. Uncle Dick was a bachelor, and owing to his jovial disposition was popular and well liked by all who knew him.

The funeral took place this morning at 10 o'clock from St. Patrick's Church. Interment in Washington Cemetery.

PRESIDENT KEHOE

Loses in Fight to Prevent Sale of Farmers and Planters Warehouses

Mr. Kehoe Makes Proposition After Directors Turn Down the Resolutions

Concerning the sale of the controlling interest in the Farmers and Planters Loose Leaf Tobacco Warehouse of Maysville, Hon. J. N. Kehoe, President of the big concern, handed in the following for publication:

Mr. Kehoe first heard of the effort to capture the Farmers and Planters Warehouse last Thursday afternoon. He at once issued a statement to the stockholders and called a meeting of the Board of Directors for Monday afternoon. In soliciting opinions those engaged in the work had done so secretly and requested that Mr. Kehoe be not notified.

At yesterday's meeting of the Board of Directors Mr. Kehoe offered a resolution protesting strongly against the sale and giving many reasons why the sale should not be made. After speaking upon same, he moved that his resolutions be adopted, which was seconded by Mr. Bouldin and a vote being taken, same was defeated the Directors voting as follows:

For the resolution—Messrs. Bouldin, Everett, Day, Kerns, Curry, Kehoe.

Against it—Messrs. Kirk, Wood, Parker, Mackay, Todd, Tilton, Clarke, Watson.

Mr. Kehoe then offered the following proposition, to-wit:

MAYSVILLE, KY., July 23d, 1912.

To the Board of Directors of the Farmers and Planters Warehouse Company, Maysville, Ky.—Gentlemen: If it is the desire of all or a majority of the stockholders of your corporation to dispose of their stock and the property and effects of said corporation, I hereby offer and agree to purchase all or a majority of said stock on a basis of $120 per share, which would produce a profit of $9,600 to our stockholders, or a premium of $2 on each share.

I make this proposition for the purpose of protecting our shareholders, many of whom subscribed for said stock at my solicitation, against a threatened loss to them on options recently secured from them upon untrue and misleading statements by selfish promoters who represent, I believe, either a trust or an individual or individuals who do not live in and have no interest in the people or business affairs of this community, and because I know the stock is worth the money.

It being a part of this proposition and agreement that I am to get the stock from parties owning it July 1st, 1912, as shown by our books, and all the premium is to go to the owners of that date and no part thereof to any promoter or speculator. Respectfully,
J. N. KEHOE.

And moved that it be placed upon the minutes of the Board and submitted to the stockholders, which motion was seconded by Mr. Everett.

The vote being taken, resulted as follows:
For it—Messrs. Bouldin, Everett, Day, Kerns, Curry and Kehoe.

Against it—Messrs. Kirk, Wood, Parker, Mackay, Todd, Tilton, Clarke and Watson.

ONE OF MANY REASONS

Why Vudor Porch Shades are superior to all others is the fact that those sitting on the porch can see out, but passersby cannot see in.

In other words, you have complete privacy, and can use the porch or veranda the same as an inside room, with infinitely more comfort on hot days. The Vudor Shade is also far superior to the bamboo and cheaper in the end because it is so much more durable and will last many seasons longer.

[REPUBLICAN TICKET.]

FOR PRESIDENT, WILLIAM HOWARD TAFT.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT, JAMES S. SHERMAN.

The farmer who disliked President Taft's reciprocity arrangement with Canada should read carefully the Democratic platform and especially its utterance on the tariff question. If reciprocity would have slain it thousands would not tariff for revenue only slay its tens of thousands? Do you not remember conditions in 1896 under the Wilson-Gorman tariff? Do you want a reproduction of those conditions? If you do, then Elect a Democratic Congress and a Democratic president.—Georgetown Gazette.

As the education of the public progresses in sanitary matters, the tendency to criticize officials responsible for conditions that are not as they should be becomes more pronounced.

Plain Speaking on Sanitary Matters.

This is a hopeful sign, and means, inevitably, improved conditions. As examples of plain speaking on these matters, two instances may be cited. The headline over an article in a daily paper published in a large western city reads: "One More Baby's Life Forfeited to the Game of Politics." The article contains an account of an epidemic of scarlet fever which was traced to a certain dairy. It specifically attributes the death of a 5-year old child to the milk from this dairy, and goes on to say: "The milk inspection department, during the time that a milker at the farm was developing scarlet fever, was playing politics. The inspectors were out soliciting votes among such of the dairymen as lived within the city limits, and had a vote May 21st. On their shoulders is laid the blame for the infection spread through the city."

The other instance also concerns the milk supply, this time in a large Eastern city. The chief inspector of creameries of the State Board of Health made an inspection of creameries and dairies in the city and found only three out of the twenty-seven that were up to the standard. He stated to the local Board of Health that he had no doubt that the impure milk was the cause of the death of many infants, and that if the Board did not take immediate action the State Board would step in and force the local Board to do its duty. With all the agitation and legislation concerning milk it is scarcely possible that milk producers and distributors do not know the role of impure milk in the production of disease and death in infants. A conscience so defective as to permit such conditions to exist in the face of that knowledge, says The Journal of the American Medical Association, requires drastic criticism and vigorous action to penetrate it and get it in a normal working condition. Fearless speaking by the newspapers and the public will surely improve the health situation.

With reference to the constitutional amendment for abolishing of capital punishment, five states: Michigan, Wisconsin, Rhode Island, Kansas and Maine, have abolished it. Iowa, after an experience of six years without it, restored it.

It is likely that the third party leaders will find their cries of fraud far less effective in the coming campaign than they are now counting on.

Fraud Cries Won't Reach.

After the election in the Hayes-Tilden campaign (1876) there was a far fiercer cry of fraud on the part of Democrats than that which has succeeded the Chicago convention.

Democrats then contended that they had been cheated out of the presidency and but for the reference of the matter to the electoral commission war might have followed.

Hayes won the decision and became President. The Democrats never ceased to shout fraud. This was kept up for years. Portraits of President Hayes were produced and circulated with a brand of fraud printed across his forehead.

And what happened? In the next presidential election the Republicans elected Garfield president and chose a Republican house.

The third party will have to depend on something more effective than fraud-cries.—Portsmouth Blade.

Musical Musings.

New York Musical Courier.

Cheap teachers take little but give less.

A new book just published in London is called "The Romance of the Fiddle." The chief romance about the fiddle generally is its price.

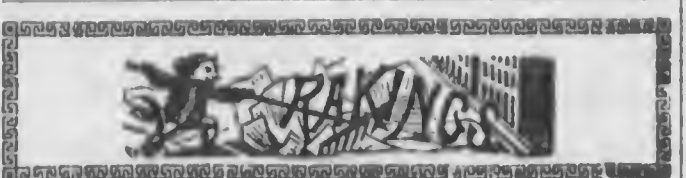

Philadelphia reports that the National Saengerfest held there recently faces a deficit of $10,000. Philadelphia brewers ought to pay the loss out of their week's profits.

As the next series of Olympic contests, in 1916, is to be held at Berlin, no one need be surprised if competitions for fiddlers, pianists, songsters and opera composers be included in the list of sports.

Internal rumblings from the Vesuvius of grand opera and a lava of words flowing constantly, force the conclusion that Oscar Hammerstein's contemplated New York eruption with another opera venture is by no means to be regarded as having been given up.

Attention is called by a London contemporary to the fact that the hundredth anniversary is at hand of the introduction of the waltz into England. There was violent opposition to the dance at first, even Byron being an anti-waltzer. What would he say to the latter day turkey trot?

And to think, in these days of summer zephyrs, plashing wavelets and whispering forests, of tennis, golfing, motoring, fishing, boating, of general loafing and flirting with leisure, that six months from now we will be sitting in concert halls listening with strained attention to "Heldenleben" and taking seriously the troubles of Tristan and the agony of Aida!

OLD HOME DEDICATED

LOG RESIDENCE OF JOAQUIN MILLER TO BE PRESERVED.

Californians Extol Him and Place Him Among the World's Great Figures—His Greatness Not to Be Appreciated Until His Death.

Under the auspices of the California State Association the quaint little log cabin in which Joaquin Miller, the poet of the Sierras, lived while in Washington, has been dedicated in Rock Creek Park, to which it was moved from its original site, now occupied by a more pretentious residence.

Michael O'Donoghue, poet of the society, presided. Many tributes were paid to Joaquin Miller. Representatives Julius Kahn and Joseph K. Lowland delivered the principal addresses. Senators Chamberlain, Works, La Follette and Meyers were expected to make short speeches, but were unable to take part in the exercises. Henry White, who donated the cabin to the California State Society, was also unable to be present.

Nearly 200, most of whom were Californians, joined in the celebration. "Like Edgar Allan Poe, his greatness will not be appreciated until his death. Then his name will grow, and he will go down in history as one of the greatest literary lights the world has ever known," said Representative Kahn.

"Strange to say, the English people appreciate Miller more than the Americans. In the years to come this country will awaken to the realization that he was one of America's greatest writers. Miller's 'Columbus,' or 'Sail On, Sail On,' is considered by English people to be his greatest masterpiece, and truly it is."

Following the address of Representative Kahn, John Phillips Meakin, for years a citizen of Salt Lake City, recited this poem. Mr. Meakin said he considered it Miller's masterpiece. "The American public does not, and he will not until Miller is dead, appreciate his wonderful genius," added Mr. Meakin.

Representative Knowland told of the literary lights who have at times lived in California, naming Mark Twain, Bret Harte, Frank Norris, Edwin Markham and Gertrude Atherton. He placed Joaquin Miller among the world's great poets. He said that last fall he visited Miller at his home near Oakland, Cal., where he found him feeble.

"Miller told me that most of the timber used in the construction of his cabin came from Rock Creek Park," said Mr. Knowland. "It is a strange coincidence that the cabin should rest in the place where he cut the timbers with which to build it. He also told me that most of the rock used in the cabin came from the Washington monument. He seemed thankful that his cabin was to be preserved, and expressed the desire to see it before his death."

A poem, "My Log Cabin Lovers," written for the occasion by Miller, was recited by Fred E. Woodward, who read extracts from letters from Juanita, the daughter of the poet, and from Miller himself. In a letter to Mr. Woodward she said:

"Precious papa is not seriously ill. He has no pain, thank God, but he is not strong, and although he sleeps and eats well he becomes exhausted after a short ride or drive or walk or any mental effort. Those log cabin verses have not worried him, however, as they came directly from his heart."

The extract from Miller's letter reads: "Of course I am glad to hear of the care of the cabin, a compliment to Washington as well as to myself. Vanity? So be it. I have always believed in myself."

OLD CORNER STONE IS FOUND

The Original Landmark of the District of Columbia Is Brought to Light.

The original corner stone of the District of Columbia, which was laid with pomp and ceremony on April 15, 1791, has again been brought to light. It is located beneath a sea wall in front of Jones' Point lighthouse, on the Potomac below Alexandria. It remained there for 70 years exposed to the weather, until in 1861 it was concealed by the construction of the sea wall around the lighthouse.

The United States engineer corps, Col. W. C. Langfitt commanding, has been making some repairs and the stone was disclosed when a small part of the retaining wall was removed.

The wall will be rebuilt so that the stone will remain in view protected by a concrete inclosure with a grating in front. It is expected that the Columbia Historical society will erect a permanent tablet beside the relic to commemorate the laying of the first District corner stone.

The stone is badly weathered and the inscriptions are nearly all illegible. The figure "1791" may be read on the southeast side, this evidently being part of the date.

William McIntosh, the "Scotch Indian"

HE was half Scotch, half Indian, a wholly original character. His mother was a squaw of the "Creek nation." His father was a Scotch trader and soldier. The son took the name of William McIntosh. But he remained with his mother's people and was made a Creek war chief.

The Creeks were a powerful federation of Indian tribes whose lands stretched through several of the southernmost states. The white settlers, growing more and more numerous, cast envious eyes on the rich Creek country and appealed to the United States government to get it away from its redskin owners for them. It was the same old story enacted so many times along the frontier when the white man has wanted the Indian's land. The government turned over several million acres of Creek territory to the state of Georgia. McIntosh pointed out to his people that unless they stood firm for their possessions the government would soon have every acre of their once huge tract of land. He then drew up a law—which the Creeks eagerly adopted—making it a crime punishable by death for a Creek to try to sell to the United States any of the remaining territory. This law made McIntosh immensely popular with the Indians. He now proceeded to make himself equally popular with the government.

In the War of 1812 most of the Creeks sided with Great Britain. But McIntosh declared himself a friend of the United States and managed to raise a big war party, which followed him against the rest of his "nation." He attacked a village of Creeks (Atsasi) that had sided with England and massacred its 200 men, women and children. In other conflicts of that same war he fought so savagely against his own people as to win not only the rank of major, but the trust of our government. Incidentally his services opened to him a pleasant field for graft.

The United States was eager for more of the Creek lands. McIntosh stood high in the Creek councils. He could be of use in managing "treaties" for the despoiling of his people. He willingly accepted the government's offer and secretly became its paid agent. It was a highly profitable bit of double-dealing—for a time.

Fifteen million acres of Creek land were soon after transferred to the United States. McIntosh reaped a rich harvest by this "treaty." But it ruined him with the Creeks. They made no open threats against the traitor; but they simply met in council and re-enacted his own former law, making any such future transfers punishable by death.

In 1824 McIntosh received a large cash offer for his services in a plan for ceding 10,000,000 more acres of the Creeks to the government. The majority of the Creeks fiercely protested against this glaring robbery. John C. Calhoun, secretary of state, declared that it was a cruelly unjust. President Monroe laid the treaty before the United States senate. And, after John Quincy Adams' inauguration, it was approved. A letter in which McIntosh had offered bribe money to one of the Creek officials to side with the government was discovered by the Indians. This proved the wily half-breed's treachery past all question. The Creeks—using his own old law as a death warrant—declared McIntosh's life forfeited.

This time McIntosh was really alarmed. He retired to a fortified house at Milledgeville and surrounded himself with a strong guard. The Creeks went about the traitor's execution in a quiet, business-like way. On the night of May 1, 1825, one hundred of them surrounded his house. They sent orders to his guards, servants and family to leave the place at once. Then they burned the house to the ground. McIntosh, dashing out through the flames, was shot dead.

No punishment was inflicted on McIntosh's slayers. The question of vengeance was brought before President Adams. But, for everybody's sake, it was deemed best to let the affair drop. It was a scandal the administration did not care to make too public.

His Advantage.
"Why," asked the foreign suitor, "do you prefer this plain American to me, a man of titles?"

"So is he a man of titles," replied the fair young helress, "and his titles have this advantage over yours, that they can stand an examination by a guarantee and trust company."

How He Got It.
"How did you get that fine spring overcoat?"
"I had a sure tip on a horse race—"
"I never knew one of those tips to pan out!"
"Neither did I. So I didn't play it. Out the money into an overcoat instead."

Acorn Which Made Giant Oak

William Wiggins, who is having the timber on two acres of land sawed into lumber, saw the acorn log that has been put into lumber in the country for many years. It was a white oak and cut 2,430 measured feet of good lumber. If this can be equaled by any country in this section, we would like to hear from it.

SUFFRAGE

For Women Asked For In Very Remarkable Appeal Issued in Ohio

The managers of the Ohio Woman Suffrage Headquarters are presenting to voters this week the following very remarkable appeal:

Listen, brothers, for I claim your attention in behalf of your sisters and mine!

In primitive forests we fought the wolves to protect your children, and when clans were born out of social chaos, we founded industry in the open field, and in the cave that was home.

In the days of despotism we sweated and suffered for you, and not less than you. We bore the taskmaster's lash on flesh made tender to your service. Our wounds festered in the sun.

In ages of tolerance and cooperation we were persecuted, as you were, for Truth's sake, sawn asunder, burned as witches, fed to ravenous beasts, martyred in vile ways innumerable.

Throughout all ages we have shared your poverty and your mischance, your doubt and your sorrow, your oft thwarted passion for beauty, love, advancement, freedom and ideas.

We have borne you and suckled you, rocked you in cradles, carried you from place to place, on our backs and in our arms, nursed you in sickness, fostered you in health, inspired you in battle and comforted you in death. There has been no darkness through which we have not gone with you blind to band.

Not now you are coming into your own proud heritage, my brothers, and a new morning dawns, gladdened by freedom and opportunity. Have we no share in the morning?

By our blood and by our tears freely spent for you, by our labor and our births, by our love inseparable, we claim fullest human rights in this your morning of freedom.

Listen, brothers, for I speak for all your sisters, for the weak as well as the strong, for those who understand and for those who do not understand, and I say,

Give us a share in your democracy, that we may show you ours!

SICK DAUGHTER NOW WELL

Mrs. C. Cole Tells How Her Daughter Was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound.

Fitchville, Ohio.—"I take great pleasure in writing to thank you for what your medicine has done for my daughter.

"Before taking your medicine she was all run down, suffered from pains in her side, could not walk but a short distance at a time, and had severe pains in head and limbs. She came very near having nervous prostration. She had begun to cough a good deal and seemed melancholy by spells. She tried two doctors but got little help.

"I cannot find words to express my gratefulness for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound has done for my daughter. She feels and looks like another girl since taking it, and I shall always feel that I owe you a great debt. You can use this letter for the benefit of others if you wish, as I shall send your medicines for my troubles."—Mrs. C. COLE, Fitchville, Ohio.

Hundreds of such letters from mothers expressing their gratitude for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound has done for their daughters, have been received by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company, Lynn, Mass.

Young Girls, Heed This Advice. Girls who are troubled with painful or irregular periods, backache, headache, ring-down sensations, fainting spells, indigestion, should immediately seek relief to health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

He cautions them in no uncertain tones to be on their guard and not allow a vote to get away from them.

THE PARAMOUNT

ISSUE OF THE DAY

The Full Pay Envelope, the Full Dinner Pail and the Full Tide of Prosperity

Auburn (N. Y.) News.

Fundamentally the difference between Democratic and Republican policies is in the last analysis strictly industrial. The two great parties have been fighting for 50 years on the tariff and other industrial policies which divided them. The paramount issue on which the people have decided for the Republicans at every election but two for a half a century have been industrial and financial issues, not those raised by fervid oratory, torchlight processions and the glamour of personality. For the past four or five elections more than a million votes have constituted the majority that stood between the protection of the country's business interests and the menace of Democracy.

The fundamental policies of the two parties are either for or against the best interests of the country, and those interests are inseparably allied with industrial prosperity, upon which the prosperity of all the people depends. Far above the petty issues raised by the vote of a single state is the issue of the full dinner pail, the full pay envelope, the full tide of prosperity for the business man has always meant plenty of work for the working man and plenty of markets for the farmers. These are the trinity of our whole economic system and an injury to either is an injury to all.

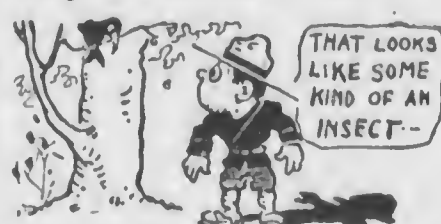

Republican candidates standing on these issues may be defeated, but the challenge of the opposition cannot go unanswered. There are not times when the people weigh carefully the fitness of candidates or the problems most vitally affecting them.

They are not times of deliberation, but of hysteria, not of dispassionate conservation but of wild and rabid radicalism.

But long after the epidemic of political rabies has been stamped out and cooler counsels have prevailed, the fact still remains that the American business man is one of the three keystones in the arch of the Nation's progress—one might say he is the central one of the three. The fact will still remain that all political doctrines must stand the ultimate test of their effect upon material prosperity and that Republican doctrine has always been synonymous with the largest measure of that paramount concern of the people.

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Boy Scouts at Work on New Task

WASHINGTON.—Boy Scouts of America are doing a piece of real and extremely useful scouting. They are searching for trees that are afflicted with disease or insects. This work was started in Pennsylvania, where a disease is destroying thousands of chestnut trees.

"The boys have been of great help to the forestry department in detecting this disease and reporting the trees thus afflicted to the department of forestry."

That work afforded an excellent piece of scouting for boys and the result has been that boy scouts throughout the country have written to James E. West, chief scout executive of the Boy Scouts of America, asking for information about other diseases and insects that affect trees and shrubs.

They wanted something definite to look for in their hikes.

As a result George H. Merrill, one of the secretaries employed by the Boy Scouts of America, is compiling with the aid of Gifford Pluchot, former

United States forester and member of the National Council of the Boy Scouts of America, a chapter for the manual and for the scoutmasters outlining different diseases of the most significant trees.

Boys also are being taught what diseases of the trees and what plants are likely to prove harmful to themselves. This work will train the observation powers of the boys by keeping them alert. They will watch the trees and the shrubs more closely, and through alertness they will appreciate beauty of the trees and of the surroundings, and they will gain many beneficial results from that work.

"Among the most destructive insects," said Merrill, "must be enumerated the bark lice or scale insects, plant lice, wood borers, codling moth, San Jose scale, tent caterpillars, cucumber worms, tussockmoths, leaf-mining beetles, gall-forming insects, chinch-bugs, army worms, weevils and locusts. Aside from this army of destruction to forest and orchard tree alike, and to the lesser plants, there are also causes of loss due to such agents as fungus, animals, weather conditions, etc."

"The boy scouts, I think, can be of material service in doing real scouting in locating cases of blighted trees or of those badly affected by insects, feeders and parasites."

Emblem of Church Should Be First

A CHURCH flag is the emblem and standard of God, and to place it above the flag of the United States during religious services aboard a vessel is but little more recognition of God, it was asserted the other day by Dr. E. M. Blackwell, of the navy.

"I have noticed that certain parties object to the church pennant being hoisted above the national flag on board ship of the navy during divine services, stating in effect that there is nothing paramount to the national flag," Dr. Blackwell said.

"As regards other nations and flags and other human organizations, I fully agree that there is nothing paramount to the United States or its flag, but there is a Supreme Power or Force that is paramount to everything earthly, and the emblem of that Supreme Power or Force, when hoisted, should be hoisted above every other flag or emblem."

"As I understand it, the church flag, whether Christian, Jew, Buddhist, Brahman, Confucian, Mahomedan, or what not, is the emblem and standard of God to that religion and not of the religion itself."

"Different nations and peoples have conflicting ideas of God. Some regard Him as a Supreme Being, others as the great Force or Power of the universe or nature; but, however we regard Him, we should recognize Him as the great unmeasurable, overmastering, all powerful, irresistible Force that rules, governs and directs the universe, and should willingly submit to His laws. No matter how grand a personage, or great a nation may be, they have got to succumb to the laws of nature, which are the laws of God."

"Men and nations at various times have arrogated to themselves that they were supreme over earth, and have had their answers by being wiped out of existence, so that there is not a vestige left of them, and in destruction by earthquakes, floods, famines, fire, and pestilence and by the foundering of the Titanic and other marino disasters."

"As a great majority of the people of this country acknowledge the Christian faith, and as Christian people practically rule the world, the church pennant is certainly the one we should use as representing that great Being to whom we owe allegiance."

U. S. Treasury Department Greatest

THERE is no institution on earth that handles as much money as the treasury department of the United States government. It collects and expends all moneys authorized to be collected and expended by congress. It advises congress as to the amount of money necessary to run the government for each fiscal year. It mints the coin, prints the paper money as well as the postage and revenue stamps.

Among the other activities of this great department of government is the protection of the people from counterfeiters; the maintenance of vessels to suppress smuggling and to enforce quarantine regulations, to save life, to conserve the public health, construct and maintain public buildings all over the country, and audit and pay the accounts of all the other departments of the government. It also controls and supervises the national banking system, comprising some 8,000 banks, with a capital of a billion dollars and a surplus of $700,000,000. In short every financial function of the United States comes in contact with this department.

Since the administration of President Washington the treasury portfolio has been held by 44 individuals. Seventeen states have furnished all the men who have presided over the treasury department down to and including the present incumbent. They have come from various sections of the country. Geographically the north Atlantic division of states supplied nearly one-half; 21 came from the states embraced in that division. The north central division of states was represented by 12; the south central by 6 and the south Atlantic by 5. The western division of states, as yet, have not been called upon for a treasurer.

Illicit Distilling Is on the Increase

MOONSHINING—the act of manufacturing distilled liquors in violation of the internal revenue law—is on the increase all over the country, according to experts of the treasury department. Of course, the department never concerns itself with questions of public policy, and consequently it has nothing to do or say about the increase or decrease of prohibition throughout the United States. Nevertheless the work of the bureau of internal revenue is immediately concerned with this question of public policy, because it has been found that wherever prohibition laws exist there also is afforded the greatest possible incentive for violations of the internal revenue laws by "moonshiners."

It will be some weeks yet before the report of the work of internal revenue agents with respect to the enforcement of the laws against "moonshining" will be compiled for the last fiscal year, but enough is known to warrant the statement that there has not only been a great increase, but a great spread of that industry in the last fiscal year.

The greatest increase in this illegal business in recent years has been noted in Georgia, Alabama, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia and Tennessee. While the internal revenue officers have been constantly raiding the districts where the illicit industry has been known to exist for half a century or more, a backfire has sprung up in the settled districts of those states which has necessitated an increase in the force of inspectors and agents and great diligence and energy all along the line.

Furthermore, the "moonshining" industry has begun to invade the north and particularly some of the larger cities of the north, where the possibility of hiding is excellent.

EASY PICKING

Maysville Played Ball Yesterday and Lexington Took Game, 7 to 2

Maysville lost out to Lexington yesterday in a very weak exhibition of ball playing; score 7 to 2.

Turner was in the box for the victors and was too much for Maysville, while Vance was was easy hitting for the Lexington bunch.

Maysville was outplayed at all points and will have to do better to win the pennant.

The feature of the game was the ordering from the left part of the grounds of the four-month blackguards by Umpire Franklin. The disgusting language of these cowardly coveys who go to ball games to vent their brutality was stopped by Franklin, who informed THE LEADER that he never heard anything like it. Mayor Lee should be told what was said yesterday, right in the hearing of the ladies present.

Decent people will not stand for such conduct.

Where are the police?

"Four State Tour" a Great Feature and Attracted Much Attention

Yesterday afternoon Market street, Maysville, was packed with autos, the "Indiana Four State Tour" consisting of 31 autos valued at over $100,000 was the novel sight which fastened the attention of the public. The auto came from Huntington, W. Va., on barges pushed by a towboat. Disembarking at the foot of Market street the machines were packed on Market street for nearly an hour—leaving at 4 o'clock for Lexington.

The cars are preceded by a confetti car two hours. All the cars keep their position back of a pace-making car that is changed each day. The tour embraces trucks as well as pleasure cars.

The traveling pageant is known to the people as the second annual Indiana Four State Tour. ### Maxwell Men From New Castle Factory

New York, Detroit and Indiana Autoists in Cars Numbered Two, Three and Four.

Maxwell team in the Indiana Four State Tour consists of three cars, carrying ten men. No. 2 is one of the 36-horsepower touring cars which won the Glidden Tour last fall, run from New York to Florida. It is driven by H. M. Van Mire, of the New Castle factory, and has upon it the same war paint which it bore in the gruelling contest along the Atlantic coast. It bears the impression of a battle with Virginia mud and mountains and the Florida sands.

In this car is W. McK. White of the United States Motor Company of New York City, a Detroit representative of the sales department of this company and a newspaper man.

Car No. 3 is a 36-horsepower four-cylinder touring car, known as the Maxwell "30." It is driven by Milford Weigle, also from our New Castle plant. Car No. 4, the third member of the trio, is a Maxwell "30" roadster, driven by Kenneth Highley, also of New Castle. Messrs. Weigle and Highley are accompanied by newspaper representatives and guests of the Maxwell company. The two Maxwell "30's" are painted in blue and are the successors of the well-known Maxwell Miscoote models, from which they differ only in having a slightly increased horsepower.

Frank E. Smith, president of the Indiana Automobile Manufacturers' Association and manager of the Maxwell factory, had intended to be one of the passengers in the Maxwell Special. A recent accident, however, prevents his participation.

Mr. Simon Newell of Cincinnati and daughter, Mrs. H. P. Sharmon of Memphis, Tenn., are guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Newell of Third street.

How The Body Kills Germs.

Germs that get into the body are killed in two ways—by the white corpuscles of the blood, and by a germ-killing substance that is in the blood. Just what this substance is, we do not know. The blood of a healthy person always has some germ-killing substance in it to ward off the attack of disease. The fountain head of life is the stomach. A man who has a weak and impaired stomach and who does not properly digest his food will soon find that his blood has become weak and impoverished, and that his whole body is improperly and insufficiently nourished. To put the body in healthy condition, to feed the system on rich, red blood and throw out the poisons from the body, nothing in the past forty years has succeeded Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a pure (lyseric extract (without alcohol), of bloodroot, golden seal and Oregon grape root, stone root, mandrake and queen's root with black cherry bark.

"My husband was a sufferer from stomach trouble and indigestion," writes Miss James H. Martin, of Frankfort, Ky. "He had a cure on his face that would form a week which would dry and drop off in about a month, then another would immediately form. It continued this way for a long time. The third time I wrote that anyone would cure it, but I could not find a doctor who would cure him. He had a Medical Discovery which completely cured him. He has not had a relapse now for two years, and I recommend this valuable medicine to all who suffer from the blood."

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. They cure, they granules.

Art Steel Tube Bed

Do you see how the square cross-section of head and foot beautifully this. Imagine this design with round tubing, those positions. Would not the result be "ordinary" and monotonous?

It is just such details of clever and artistic designing that have made our steel beds so popular. And the very large corner posts with brass caps all combine to make this an unusually artistic bed.

Moreover this bed is as good as it looks. Because it is made of drawn steel tubing, very light in weight—extremely strong.

A child can move this bed with greatest ease. Come in and see. Then you will realize how good.
